

Practical 11

Create a class named employee having attributes - emp_name, emp_age, and emp_city. Create a method named get_data() in employee class that takes user input for these attributes. Derive a class named emp_derived() from the employee class, having an __init__() method that displays the attributes of the employee class upon instantiation.